++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Winds easing with increasingly clear intervals into Saturday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rather cloudy during the evening though with some clear spells, primarily in the east. Scattered showers and brisk winds, particularly strong along northern coasts. However, largely drying up through the night and winds easing in the early hours. Largely mild. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Saturday:
A cloudy start but increasing amounts of brightness allowing for some sunshine in the afternoon. Dry throughout with an initial breeze turning light. Feeling mild and pleasant in the sun. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
The risk of lingering fog on all mornings. Once cleared, sunny intervals on Sunday but cloudier for Monday and Tuesday, perhaps with drizzle in places. Feeling a little colder.
